ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Certain individuals deserve recognition for their efforts on behalf of this project to organize Fort Malden's archival collection. First among these is Linda Chakmak, a graduate in History and Library Science with particular interest in archives administration. Employed through the Career Oriented Summer Employment Programme (COSEP), Linda approached the arrangement and description of this wealth of material with skill and enthusiasm. Resource Centre Specialist Sally E. Scherer supervised the project, ensuring that accuracy and consistency were maintained throughout and that full consideration was given to archival standards, user requirements, and cost-efficient operation. Drawn heavily from works by established archivists and benefitting from the advice and experience of staff at the Burton Historical Collection of the Detroit Public Library, a system has been developed which conforms to standard practice but which takes into consideration the size and nature of the collection itself. This system could serve well as an example for other institutions with small but valuable manuscript and archival collections.

GENERAL INTRODUCTION

Since its establishment in 1941, and particularly during its early years of operation, Fort Malden National Historic Park has acquired a variety of manuscript materials, both relevant and irrelevant to its themes. In keeping with the early procedures for the receipt of items into the collections, much of this material is in the form of now untraceable loans, creating a potentially permanent custodial situation. Whether thematically relevant or irrelevant, much of the material is historically invaluable and there exists an ethical obligation for its proper care and accessibility to legitimate researchers.

Through a grant from the 1983 Career Oriented Summer Employment Programme (COSEP), the proper arrangement, description and storage of the archival holdings were made possible. In addition to dealing with historic documents, this project also addressed the issue of internal records related to site development and acquisitions, which are necessary in the day to day management of the Park. It was a key objective to establish an effective, cost-efficient system which would satisfactorily carry out our obligations while minimizing handling costs.

The project was accomplished in four stages. The first required the division of the material into manuscripts and records. The manuscript holdings consist of a diverse group of documents, some items more relevant than others to the history of Fort Malden. The archival or institutional records pertain to the Park's overall development (including property acquisition, attendance, and publicity) and collections management.

The next phase of the reorganization process involved the determination of the provenance or origin of each set of manuscripts. Since a subject arrangement had been employed previously, collections had to be reconstructed using the accession records and other available information to ensure that all documents acquired from an individual or single source remained together. Unfortunately, it was not possible to determine provenance in every case.

In the third stage, judgements were made as to the relevance of individual manuscript collections to the Park's main interpretive themes, including the War of 1812, the Rebellion of 1837-38, nineteenth-century military life, the British Indian Department and the history of Fort Malden, as laid out in the Management and Interpretation plans. Each collection was designated as either theme-related or unrelated, with collections containing even one relevant item being placed in the theme-related category, in accordance with archival practice.

In arranging the material and devising a format for its description, accepted archival standards were followed to the greatest degree possible. Because of the specialized nature of the collection, however, certain minor modifications were deemed necessary. Finally, while every effort has been made to ensure that the guides and other documentation prepared are both complete and correct, it is anticipated that corrections, additions and deletions will be necessary from time to time.

\[1\] The Society of American Archivists' "Basic Manual Series" (1977) was used as a basic guideline. David B. Gracy's Archives and Manuscripts: Arrangement and Description was especially useful.

to legitimate researchers through designated Staff members. The Development and Accession Records are primarily restricted to staff use.

Description

Guides have been prepared for each of the manuscript groups and the record group. In these guides, each unit has a Collection Description which briefly describes the nature of the material and highlights important features and items. Larger, more significant collections may also have an Historical Note providing background on the subject of the collection and a Provenance Note linking the lender or donor to the papers. The remainder of each entry gives a brief file-by-file description of the contents. It must be stressed that only the highlights have been listed and that other documents may also be present.

In the description of each collection, reference is made to the condition of the materials. "Good condition" means that the documents are intact and able to withstand normal handling. "Fair condition" means that the documents are beginning to show signs of deterioration and that caution should be used when handling them. Units in "poor condition" must be examined with extreme care. Where available, copies should be used instead of originals.

Subject Access

A card-file nominal and subject index has been developed and is housed in the Resource Centre. While spelling may vary in the guides (which have reproduced names as they appear on the documents), the index links variant forms whenever possible. The names of military personnel connected with Fort Malden are also incorporated into the Military Reference File.
INTRODUCTION

This manuscript group is composed of those units deemed relevant to the Park's main interpretive themes, including the War of 1812, the Rebellion of 1837-38, nineteenth-century military life, the British Indian Department, and the history of Fort Malden, as laid out in the Management and Interpretation plans.

This account book, also known as the McGregor Wastebook, is said to have belonged to the McGregor brothers who ran a general store at Sandwich, Upper Canada. Although the term "wastebook" refers to a rough account book, this volume appears to be their formal copy of all business transactions. The book is significant from a military viewpoint because it records purchases made by Fort Halden, the British Indian Department and various army officers. There is a break in the entries during Hull's invasion of Canada and only random entries occur after 30 December 1812.

Provenance: Herbert Courtney

Under its patriarch, Colonel William Caldwell, the Caldwell Family has played a crucial part in Amherstburg's past. Caldwell was born in Ireland in 1758 and came to America at the age of fifteen. In 1776, he was appointed Captain in Butler's Rangers and in 1782 took part in the Battle of Blue Licks. Later, he became Matthew Elliott's successor as Deputy Superintendent General of the British Indian Department at Amherstburg. As Quarter Master General of Militia with the British "Right Division", Caldwell took part in the War of 1812. Four of Caldwell's sons--William Jr., Francis, Thomas and Billy--also saw military action during the war. Captain Billy Caldwell, in particular, played an important part in the Indian Department; the fact that he was half Indian reinforced British-Indian relations in southwestern Ontario. Francis Caldwell, in addition to serving as Captain in the 1st Essex Militia, also acted as Collector of Customs for the port at Amherstburg and had business connections with the Colborne Iron Furnace at Olinda.

COLLECTION DESCRIPTION

The Caldwell Family Papers represent one of the most influential and historically significant families in the Amherstburg area. The collection is approximately 1 foot in length (6 inches of originals, 6 inches of copies) and dates from 1791 to 1939. It consists of a variety of materials, including correspondence, legal documents and maps. Correspondence makes up a large portion of the collection. The first series has been divided into three subseries: Military Correspondence and Papers, Business Correspondence and Papers (mainly those of Francis Caldwell) and Personal Correspondence and Papers of the Colonel, his sons, his son-in-law, James Kevill and his grandson, Captain William Caldwell. The second series contains legal documents such as wills, marriage certificates and Crown land grants. The third and final series consists of two maps, one of which gives a detailed view of Amherstburg and the military grounds in the earlier years.

PROVENANCE NOTE

The Caldwell Family Papers were donated to Fort Malden National Historic Park by Linda Delmore, daughter of Yvonne Teeter Bailey. Mrs. Bailey was a direct descendant of Colonel William Caldwell, Sr. Her mother was Mrs. Oscar Teeter (nee Hilda Caldwell); her maternal grandfather was Captain William Caldwell, son of the Colonel's son Francis Caldwell.

HISTORICAL NOTE

When the Fort Malden Lunatic Asylum opened in 1859, Dr. Andrew Fisher was appointed as its first medical Superintendent. He was instrumental in improving the grounds for hospital use and supervised the construction of many new buildings. The present Interpretation Centre dates back to Fisher's time, originally housing the laundry and ironing rooms as well as a flour store and bakery. In 1867, Fisher resigned, probably under pressure for questionable management procedures.

COLLECTION DESCRIPTION

The Andrew Fisher Diary (1866-1873) is a copy of the original and is approximately \( \frac{1}{4} \) inch in length. The beginning of the work contains entries pertaining to the Fort Malden Lunatic Asylum. July and August of 1866 are particularly interesting and cover topics such as the escape of patients, building alterations and drainage systems. The remainder of the diary (1867, 1870-1871, 1873) consists of shorter entries with medical prescriptions.

Provenance: Copy (original in the possession of Hazen Price, Amherstburg).

Since no given name is used, the identity of Girty is not evident. However, based on local history sources, it is assumed that the person in question is Prideaux Girty. The remaining four letters are from Lyman C. Draper to Prideaux Girty. A response and other letters and memoranda pertaining to Simon Girty and others are preserved in Series E, Volume 10 of the Lyman C. Draper Collection (1883-1893) in the State Historical Society Library, Madison, Wisconsin. A microfilm copy of this material is in the Fort Malden microfilm collection. The papers, are in generally poor condition and should be handled with care.

returned at the request of the family
In July of 1851, approximately one hundred and twenty pensioned British soldiers arrived with their families at Amherstburg. These men had been recruited to serve as a peace-time military force, enabling the British Army to decrease expenses by withdrawing all regular forces from Fort Malden.

The pensioner scheme at Amherstburg was administered by Staff Sergeant-Major Joseph Taylor. A veteran of the 1st Royal Regiment of Foot, Taylor had been born in Ireland in 1802. As Sergeant-Major, Taylor's responsibilities included issuance of supplies and supervision of construction of cottages for the pensioners.

The Nettie Lovegrove Papers span the years from 1851 to 1931 and include material on Sergeant-Major Joseph Taylor, his children Robert and Maria Agnes, and his son-in-law, John Lovegrove. The collection is divided into five series: Correspondence and Papers, Pamphlets, Land Instruments, Town Audit, and Account Books. Series I and V are particularly significant, since they reflect the professional and personal life of Taylor himself. Taylor's account books contain a wealth of detailed information about the pensioner scheme, while his correspondence refers to life in and around the military post at Amherstburg. The papers are in fair to good condition.

The Nettie Lovegrove Papers were donated to Fort Malden National Historic Park by Miss Lovegrove, a daughter of Maria Agnes Lovegrove (nee Taylor) and granddaughter of Joseph Taylor. Note: Robert Taylor's discharge certificate (Series I, Subseries B, File 1) actually donated by Margaret C. Martin.

The John Marsh Papers are approximately 15 inches in length (including 4½ inches of copies and two bound volumes). They include photographs, a typed manuscript, correspondence and papers, and maps. The first two series are the most significant from an historical viewpoint. Series I contains papers from Rev. A.B. Farney, rector of Christ Anglican Church from 1911-1914. Farney was a very civic minded individual who promoted the preservation of Fort Malden in the early part of this century. He travelled to the Public Archives of Canada and typed out, from original documents, information pertinent to the early history of Amherstburg. Unfortunately, there is no bibliographical documentation accompanying the manuscript so the exact source of the documentation is not known. Series II consists of photographic copies of prize lists and correspondence related to the capture of Detroit during the War of 1812. Series III, IV and V contain a variety of unrelated materials. The papers are in fair condition.

File 1. (Box 13) Land Instrument 1822

William Lyon Mackenzie's disastrous march on Toronto in December of 1837 was followed by a series of border raids conducted by mixed bands of refugee Canadian "Patriots" and American sympathizers. In Essex County, incidents occurred at Amherstburg, Fighting Island, and Pelee Island in the early months of 1838. A final, unsuccessful invasion culminated in the Battle of Windsor on 4 December 1838. This engagement effectively discouraged further patriot incursions.

With a shortage of British regular troops in the Province of Upper Canada, responsibility for defence against these raids fell primarily to local militia units. A special volunteer force composed of three companies from each of the 2nd and 3rd Regiments of the Essex Militia was incorporated in November of 1838 to combat increasing patriot activity along the Detroit River. Commanded by Colonel John Prince, a lawyer and public figure from Sandwich, this Battalion was to have remained active for approximately six months. It appears, however, to have been disbanded after January 1839, following the Battle of Windsor.

The Rebellion Papers, containing various reports, correspondence and orders, represent this very volatile period in the history of southwestern Ontario. It should be noted that the bulk of the material was generated by Colonel Prince's Battalion. However, a few papers from other regiments are included as well. The collection spans the period from 1838 to 1844. It is 21 inches in length and has been divided into three series. Series I consists of Morning States, Parade States, Morning Parade States, and Field States (by commanding officer). Because these papers reflect the activities of part-time soldiers called out for militia duty under special circumstances, the military terminology used may not be precise. It is believed that Morning State, Parade State, and Morning Parade State refer to the same activity--namely a roll call which determined how many men were present and fit for duty. These inspections most likely occurred early in the morning after the men had washed and dressed. A Field State, on the other hand, was likely a roll call conducted when on detached duty or in the field. However, it is also possible that all four terms were used interchangeably. Series II consists of Morning Reports of Sick and Wounded; Series III contains various correspondence, reports and orders. These documents (along with others) were for many years, referred to as the "Girty Papers". The name has been changed in order to reflect more accurately the content of the documents involved. The collection is in fair condition.

File 10. (Box 14) Capt. Solomon T. Thebo (company no. 2), 2nd Essex Militia - Col. Prince's Battalion 29 November 1838 - 31 January 1839

N.B. Two of Capt. Thebo's reports are dated 15 January 1838 and 16 January 1838. However, no other documents exist for such an early date. Furthermore, Col. Prince's Battalion was not incorporated until the autumn of 1838 and on the 15 January document, Thebo signs C.P.B. after his name. Therefore it is likely that these two documents belong to 1839 rather than 1838.
