What the Critics say: "Perhaps, what I shall call here the poetry of radical artifice will just disappear. Perhaps, but in the meantime, it keeps turning up like a virus: in Canada, where the Concrete poetry movement of the fifties and sixties and the emergence of sound-text poetry and performance work have generated, often without direct connection to its U.S. counterparts, [there is] the very rich and vital experimentalism in evidence in such journals as Rampike..." -- Marjorie Perloff (Stanford U).

a novel by rob mclennan

In this contemporary version of the story of Persephone, a young woman lives the myth, unknowingly.

“For mclennan, borders fracture like water freezing in rock cracks; we are left with rubble—narrative unanswerable in its native state—that can only be combined and not fixed (repaired or made static).”
—Winnipeg Free Press on aubade

ROB MCLENNAN is the author, most recently of subverting the lyric: essays (ECW Press, 2007) and Ottawa: The Unknown City (Arsenal Pulp Press, 2007).
