International Symposium on Arab Youth:
Developmental Pathways for Identity
May 29-30, 2013
Rationale

- Parenting skills play a crucial role in the development of children’s personalities, personal strengths, socio-emotional adjustment and mental health (Baker & Hoerger, 2012).

- Different cultural beliefs of parents mark which goals are important in the socialization of their children. Each community has certain values that carry more weight in importance over other values (Fasulo, Loyd, & Padiglione, 2007).
Arab and Middle eastern families

- To a great extent, family status determines an individual's access to education and chances of achieving prominence and wealth.

- The family seeks to ensure an individual's conformity with accepted standards of behavior so that family honor will be maintained.

- An individual's ambitions are molded by the family in accordance with the long-term interests of the group as a whole.

- Just as the family gives protection, support, and opportunity to its members, the individual member offers loyalty and service to the family.
Core belief of Arab society

Social identity supersedes individual identity
OBSERVATIONS
VIGNETTES
“Byizaal Ammo”

In a restaurant, he is 18 months old, high seated, between mother and grand-mother facing father and grand-father. Conversation revolves around him: Say hello, sing the song, etc...“uncle will be upset, if...” “Bizaal Ammo” (here, uncle being the waiter)

Very early awareness of the impact of interpersonal social relations
Papa don’t preach

When you will grow you will become a physician like me, a lawyer like me or a politician like me;
You should do extra curricula activities so I show my friends that I develop your talents;
You should marry a person from your religion and our clan;
When you accomplish all your social duties you may think about what you like and who you like to be with in life.
Medea Azouri, L’Orient le Jour (French speaking newspaper) (11/5/2013)

Free thinker? Independent citizen?
Tell me what do you see?
Young women and motherhood

Non working upper middle class conservative young mothers:

- Delegation of their maternal roles and duties to the nannies (who are foreigners not mastering the local languages) and the private teachers.

- Minimum empathy towards child feelings, thoughts, and development.

Impact on the global development of the child: language and emotional development?
Fathers working in Arab or African countries

Mothers play a predominant role in children rearing:

- Father is a guest, sometimes not really welcomed
- Extended family increased interference
- Nuclear family living back with the grand-parents or extended family members (uncles, aunts, etc.)

Impact of this social change on the child’s perception about couples, families, paternal role, authority?
Data to illustrate parents’ perception of their role as educators

- A questionnaire of 15 multiple choice questions addressing education’s priorities and values; parenting styles and communication.

- sent to all parents (300 families) who have children aged between 3 years and 10 years enrolled in the elementary cycle in a regular school.

- families are middle class group; from different religious backgrounds.
Demographics

127 responses collected

- 28 males and 98 females, one did not specified
- Respondents mean age: 38.8yrs (min:23; max:62)
- Children age range: 3yrs to 10yrs
Priorities in parental education

1. Succeed in school
2. Follow routines
3. Reach high positions
4. Follow instructions
5. Live happily
